ABOUT THE AMERICAN NURSES CREDENTIALING CENTER

The American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC), a subsidiary of the American Nurses Association (ANA), promotes excellence in nursing and health care globally through credentialing programs. ANCC's internationally renowned credentialing programs certify and recognize individual nurses in specialty practice areas. It recognizes healthcare organizations that promote nursing excellence and quality patient outcomes, while providing safe, positive work environments. In addition, ANCC accredits healthcare organizations that provide and approve continuing nursing education. It also offers educational materials to support nurses and organizations as they work toward their credentials.
